WELCOME

NZIFF has long prided itself on providing cultural nourishment through the New Zealand winter, and support for our programmes around the country is legendary. We're back with a programme of the best and latest in national and international filmmaking that we think should keep it that way. 2degrees Mobile returns as sponsor of a massive World cinema section for a second year. Resene join us for their fourth year as sponsors of another stunning bunch of New Zealand films. Flicks.co.nz, RadioLIVE and Metro magazine remain proactive media partners. We also welcome NZherald.co.nz as our digital news partner.

Ultimately it's the support of its audience that keeps our non-profit enterprise in action, and, it always bears saying, the perseverance of independent filmmakers who did whatever it took to get these films made. 25% of your ticket money goes their way. Ticket sales contributed 88% of our income in 2016. The major sponsorship we receive from the New Zealand Film Commission is a gratifying institutional contribution to that support system.

Come in out of the rain, says our poster. Though not every great film yielded by the last turbulent year was intended to fold you in a warm embrace, there's fun in store at NZIFF and life to be had together at the movies.

20th Century Women

Opening Night

A loving, funny and insightful memoir of the mother who brought him up – and two younger women she might have enlisted to assist – Mike Mills' 20th Century Women swirls happily around a richly shaded performance from Annette Bening. Set in sunny, late-70s southern California on the brink of the Reagan era, the film is brimful with the music, artefacts and attitudes of its day, a lively time capsule inviting constant comparison with where we have landed now.

Lucas Jade Zumann plays 15-year-old Jamie and it's through his eyes that we see the bohemian household over which his mother, Dorothea, holds uncertain dominion. There are two boarders, Abbie (Greta Gerwig), a purple-haired punk photographer, and William (Billy Crudup), a hippie handyman – and pushover for any woman who fancies him. Dorothea is unaware of a third house guest, Julia (Elle Fanning), the girl next door whose propensity for chaste sleepovers is driving Jamie insane.

The plot is wafer-thin, but the joy of 20th Century Women is in how these beautifully realised individuals bounce off each other and bring the joys, frustrations and fashions of 40 years ago wafting into the present.

"A captivating Annette Bening is the beating heart of this gloriously unclassifiable movie... Part comedy of manners, part mother-son love story, it had me laughing and tearing up simultaneously... Although Bening reigns supreme, Mills zigzags through time and his characters' lives with a messy amplitude that is downright Renoiresque. Everyone has his reasons. Everyone has her say." — Molly Haskell, Sight & Sound

"A funny, emotionally piercing story about a teenager and the women who raise him."

— Manohla Dargis, NY Times

The Square

Closing Night

We close NZIFF in 2017 with a blast: Ruben Östlund's Palme d'Or winner, a sprawling, jaw-dropping satire, centred on a Swedish museum curator (Claes Bang), an exhibit, a stolen phone and an American journalist (Elisabeth Moss).

"The Square [is] a sardonic, darkly funny picture about a dashing museum curator whose dysfunctional institution is a microcosm of the larger world. Can art, or the tools used to promote it, cross the bounds of moral responsibility? What does it take to jog the upper classes out of their comfortable insularity? The Square is both outlandishly funny and biting – and features a fascinating and sometimes disturbing performance by Terry Notary, the gifted actor and [Hobbit] movement choreographer." — Stephanie Zacharek, Time

"The Square is set in the rarefied reaches of Sweden's art world, but from that vantage point takes pot shots at marketing, the media, the Swedish culture of militant political correctness as well as the pretension, self-deception, and pseudospeak of the cultural elite..."

While the targets are many and Östlund, admirably, almost always punches up, there is a kind of organizing principle relating to the chasm between the social faces we wear and the self-interested creatures we really are. Snip by snip, in scenarios dripping with acidly observed discomfort, Östlund clips precisely through the barbed-wire barrier fences of culture, sophistication and socialization that refined middle-class modern humans erect between our public selves and our private, animal natures." — Jessica Kiang, The Playlist

"Östlund's eye for the subtleties of human behavior, especially public behavior, never fails."

— Emily Yoshida, Vulture

Centrepiece

88-year-old Agnès Varda, working in collaboration with the young photo-muralist JR, reminds us that big themes can live in small places – and that every life yields something to celebrate. As the two travel across France, looking up old friends and creating artworks from photographs of the people they meet, a friendship blossoms – and with it a wonderful free flow of ideas and observations.

“She is nearly 90; he is 34. She worked with Jean-Luc Godard; he looks like Jean-Luc Godard (and, much to Varda’s consternation, will similarly not take off his sunglasses). And yet, the movie is barely five minutes old before it’s clear that these two are a screen duo for the ages... Varda has always possessed a warm and compulsively watchable screen presence, and the pint-sized iconoclast still has more pep in her step than most of us have ever had... JR is an absolute joy (and a mensch, to boot)... Teasing at times, quietly deferential at others, he taps into his co-star’s inherent sense of wonder and creates a canvas big enough for her to fit all of the ideas that she’s still dying to project.” — David Ehrlich, Indiewire

“In her magnificent, groundbreaking, nearly 60-year career, this is one of her most profoundly personal and exuberantly populist works. A tour de France that is both a romp and a meditation on photography, cinema, and mortality, with brief appearances by Mimi, the scene-stealing cat, it is at once poetry and the naked truth, shape-shifting before one’s eyes, and promising ever more pleasure with each viewing.” — Amy Taubin, Film Comment

“Serendipities fly as cinema’s greatest gleaner goes rambling in the cine-van of magnum muralist JR.”

— Isabel Stevens, Sight & Sound

Special Presentation

The personal and the political are as vitally connected as the chicken and the egg in Robin Campillo’s moving and inspiring Cannes Grand Prix winner. The writer/director draws on his own experience as a member of AIDS activist organisation ACT UP in 90s Paris, embedding an intimately observed love story within a vivid evocation of the dynamics of radical protest.

Hunky Arnaud Valois plays Nathan, a wary, HIV-negative newcomer to the movement who falls for firecracker Sean (incandescent Argentinean actor Nahuel Pérez Biscayart), HIV-positive and irresistibly impatient with the group’s more pragmatic leadership.

Campillo wrote Laurent Cantet’s The Class and this year’s The Workshop (p15). His skill for catching the currents of a group discussion is as persuasive as ever. The issues that once exercised ACT UP take on clear and present life in 2017 as the young activists brainstorm, strategise dramatic interventions and storm the institutions that would let them die.

“It’s both devastating and heartening to watch, these horrifyingly young people bravely confronting vast and seemingly unmovable systems... while attending to their own fears, their own fragile mortality...”

CELINE NIESZAWER

The film’s political and moral weight should not overshadow the artistry of its design, nor the quiet profundity of its unreserved and admirable approach to gay intimacy. Campillo has given his movie the breath of true life. It grieves and triumphs and haunts with abounding grace and understanding, its heartbeat thumping with genuine, undeniable resonance.” — Richard Lawson, Vanity Fair

“A slice-of-life look at a time in history that feels incredibly urgent in today’s torn-up world.”

Good Time

Special Presentation

"This eyes-open-to-the-world NYC crime thriller from filmmaking brothers Benny and Josh Safdie is cocky, grubby and electric. It features Robert Pattinson on top form as Connie, a quick-thinking chancer who we first meet extracting his mentally challenged brother Nick (Benny Safdie) from a therapy session so they can spend the morning robbing a bank. Connie is violent and dangerous, but he's also quick-witted and charismatic, so he's teasingly fun and rewarding company – for us at least; not for those he meets...

Once the Brooklyn bank job goes south the film stays on the move, running, punching, tumbling, stumbling over 24 hours as the fallout drags us through streets, vehicles, homes, jail, a hospital, a theme park and more. Racing through the gutter of the city, it's all shot in a scuzzy, real-world style, although the photography by Sean Price Williams also runs with a theme of neon and scarlet – and bathing some scenes in brothel-red isn't the only thing here that nods to early Martin Scorsese... It also boasts a terrific, throbbing electronic score by Daniel Lopatin, aka Oneohtrix Point Never.

Pattinson is great in this, surely his best post-Twilight performance to date:

he's quick and coarse yet he also lends the character a glint in the eye and a spark in the brain – he's always more than just bad. The Safdies are show-off filmmakers, for sure – this is a directing tour de force. But what makes the film more than just a hugely enjoyable thriller is that it so clearly has its eyes on the world around it." — Dave Calhoun, Time Out

"A riveting race-against-time thriller with a pounding heart."

Loveless Nelyubov

Special Presentation

Andrey Zvyagintsev (Leviathan) won the Cannes Jury Prize for his stark and gripping tale of a divorcing couple caught in a missing-child procedural.

"Andrey Zvyagintsev has produced another masterpiece in this apocalyptic study of a failed marriage and the subsequent disappearance of a child. Loveless is a stark, mysterious and terrifying story of spiritual catastrophe: a drama with the ostensible form of a procedural crime thriller. It has a hypnotic intensity and unbearable ambiguity which is maintained until the very end. This is a story of modern Russia whose people are at the mercy of implacable forces, a loveless world like a planet without the full means to support human life, a place where the ordinary need for survival has mutated or upgraded into an unending aspirational demand for status, money, freedom to find an advantageous second marriage which brings a nice apartment, sex, luxury and the social media prerogative of selfies and self-affirmation. But all of it is underpinned, or overseen, by intensely conservative social norms of Christianity, conformism and nationalism." — Peter Bradshaw, The Guardian

"After four films, including the brilliant Leviathan, we are almost prepared for the crystalline perfection of Russian genius Andrey Zvyagintsev's style... There is no way to do the film justice while also selling it as an appealing way to spend two devastating hours. But Zvyagintsev's skill as a filmmaker is such that as discomfiting as it is, it's deeply compelling and immersive." — Jessica Kiang, The Playlist

"Loveless is a tragic fairytale we can all believe in."

Mountain

Special Presentation

Australian filmmaker Jennifer Peedom follows her extraordinary Sherpa with a giant screen celebration of the allure of the mountains, created in collaboration with the Australian Chamber Orchestra. Spectacular images, shot in 21 countries by legendary mountaineer/cinematographer Renan Ozturk (Meru, Sherpa) and others, have been cut together thematically to an orchestral score drawing on Chopin, Grieg, Vivaldi, Beethoven and new works by Richard Tognetti. The orchestra will perform live when the film tours Australia in August, but we're delighted to have secured NZIFF big-screen engagements for the soundtracked version.

Drawing from Robert Macfarlane's book Mountain, read on the soundtrack by Willem Dafoe, the film considers the changes in humanity's relationship to mountains over recent times. Not so long ago they represented the divine and mysterious; to many indigenous communities living on their flanks they always will. By the time Hillary and Tenzing ascended Everest, mountains had been colonised by the west and filled our imaginations as personal challenges to be overcome.

That spirit of conquest may be hard to separate from the risks taken to capture the exultant top-of-the-world imagery that makes this film such an exhilarating experience. As Peedom offers us a jaw-dropping montage of people throwing themselves off precipices for the sheer thrill of it, her film revels both in the dramatic grandeur of the mountains and in the glorious irrationality which may be the only sane human response.

"To those who are enthralled by the mountains, their wonder is beyond all dispute. To those who are not, their allure is a kind of madness."

— Robert Mcfarlane, Mountain

The Other Side of Hope Toivon tuolla puolen

Special Presentation

Aki Kaurismäki, Finland's deadpan laureate of life at the bottom of the heap, responds to Europe's refugee crisis with a seriously funny film about a young Syrian mechanic (soulful Sherwan Haji) who finds his way into Finland by stowing away on a container ship full of coal. "Show me to the police station," he asks the first person he meets, intending to take the legal path to political asylum. "Are you sure?" comes the reply.

The refugee is slowly drawn, by a newly flush (though hopelessly melancholic) entrepreneur, into life under the radar working and living in what is surely Finland's dodgiest sushi restaurant.

"It's difficult to imagine anyone coming away from Aki Kaurismäki's gorgeous tragicomedy about the refugee crisis in Europe, the challenges of the restaurant business and the rewards of self-reinvention without feeling gentle elation sparked by the story's evidence of human kindness amid cruelty and indifference. This is a world that reeks of cigarette smoke and cheap vodka, yet as always in the work of Finland's maestro of droll melancholy, the perfume that lingers longest is empathy...

MALLA HUKKANEN

Not unlike the salted herring with wasabi that gets served to a busload of unfortunate Japanese diners, this is a movie about foreign elements coming together, whether it's displaced Middle Easterners fleeing atrocity in sleepy Scandinavia or two men from different worlds forging a mutually enriching friendship that speaks of selfless compassion without sentimentality."

— David Rooney, Hollywood Reporter

"The warmest, most life-enhancing film I've seen this year."

100 Men fast-tracks through 40 years of gay history via a countdown of filmmaker Paul Oremland's most memorable shags. The significance of the 100 men varies, but all have lingered in Paul's mind for some small or, ahem, big reason. Most of the men feature only as a descriptive nickname; some appear on camera. Although the film does ask whether gay men are too fixated on sex, Paul is more interested in these men's lives, emphasising the collective experience of the isolation of growing up gay.

Paul recounts how a religious upbringing in New Zealand fuelled an inner struggle and how his first heartbreak led to a move to the UK. It's there that he met John, the love of his life. Their on/off-again romance gets major screen time, with Paul unpicking their decision to eschew monogamy for an open relationship. The polyamorous life is a major talking point of the film. In the days before gay marriage seemed even remotely possible, the rejection of monogamy was a defining feature of gay culture, and the film explores the effects it had on men's lives.

This thoughtful film looks forward as much as it does back, leaving us to ponder the intricacies of gay identity today. — Chris Tse

Kim Dotcom has become such a familiar part of New Zealand's media and cultural furniture that it is easy to forget the jaw-dropping astonishment of the dawn raid on 20 January 2012, when 76 officers swarmed upon the German internet mogul's mansion, armed to the teeth.

In the definitive filmed account of the saga to date, Annie Goldson (Brother Number One) delivers a jolting reminder of the legal, political and personal upheavals ignited by the US government's attempt to extradite Dotcom and colleagues for copyright-related offences. It begins with the formative years: convicted hacker turns security consultant turns file-sharing entrepreneur. He attracts the attention of Hollywood bosses bent not just upon disabling a website awash with pirated content, but sending a resounding message to those who might seek to emulate his business.

In documenting the drama Goldson resists any temptation to extol or excoriate, while underscoring, beyond the political circus and braggadocio, just how pivotal this case is in the internet age. — Toby Manhire

Kobi

In a modest workshop in a beautiful Central Otago landscape, Swiss goldsmith Kobi Bosshard, approaching 80 and widely regarded as the grandfather of contemporary New Zealand jewellery, continues to produce works of classic simplicity and elegance.

Daughter Andrea Bosshard's lucid and loving film portrait of her father – and of her mother, Patricia, too – is one of the year's loveliest films, a lyrical evocation of rich, unhurried life. Kobi moved to New Zealand in the early 60s, with goldsmithing in his blood. The ethos of the hippie era may have enabled his choice of profession, but there's no mistaking the work ethic or quiet single-mindedness underlying his subsequent life of creativity.

Super 8 home movies brim with flowers and sunny days and evince an idyllic view of a fresh landscape and a young family in the New World. Plentiful archival footage reminds us of the days when TV broadcasters covered the arts, while readings from family letters take us into the heart of the family. This may be a very personal history, but it's perfectly pitched for an audience of strangers: the filmmaker inscribes her own presence in the inspiring story of her parents' lives with unusual grace.

An abundance of jewellery is alluringly displayed for the camera. The beauty of a lifetime's work is proclaimed by a succession of true experts: women and a few men who speak eloquently about the pieces by Kobi they have worn and treasured. It seems unlikely that Bosshard set out to recruit new customers for her father, but be warned, you may leave this gentle tribute to the simple life with a hankering to shop.

"The work we do comes out of the life we live, so we have to have a life to start with."

If you haven't already heard of Sheila Natusch, prepare to be inspired. The life story of this nonagenarian natural historian and writer is a beautiful, truly Antipodean journey, made with love by her cousin and long-time kiwi filmmaker, Hugh Macdonald.

Born in 1926 on Rakiura (Stewart Island) to the Traill family, Sheila's childhood in the deep south led to an adventurous resilience which saw her climb multiple mountains, cycle from Picton to Bluff and write dozens of groundbreaking natural history books, including the first comprehensive guide to New Zealand animals.

Featuring beautiful historic footage of the lower south in the 30s and 40s, this film also covers Natusch's friendship with Janet Frame and their unsuccessful foray into teaching. Viewers will love this radiant, defiant and unconventional life story which ranges from the southern wilds to the rugged coast of Owhiro Bay, where Sheila still lived until recently, without car, TV, lipstick or alcohol, planning to "get the last bit of fun out of life that there is." — Jo Randerson

Any band as theatrically confrontational as Head Like a Hole is going to have a story worth telling. Swagger of Thieves director Julian Boshier has worked for a decade on this film. He has earned the trust and respect of Nigel 'Booga' Beazley and Nigel Regan, the ever-collapsing binary stars who are the guts of any HLAH line up.

Boshier finds the two men staring down the age with belligerence, vulnerability, shamelessness and honesty. There is no legacy polishing here, and no one's feelings are spared. Alongside the Nigels we meet Tamzin Beazley, holding together a family in the face of Booga's occasional flailing darkness. Band members emerge in various iterations – some wounded and disgruntled, others with their grundle still intact.

Studded through the film are performances by the band in all their cock-wobbling, floor pounding, propulsive and preposterous glory.

Whether you come as a fan of the music, as a fan of solid filmmaking, or as a bystander wondering what all the noise is about, you'll be seeing one of the most intelligently assembled and truthfully told documentaries New Zealand has produced. — Graeme Tuckett

For this year's New Zealand's Best short film competition, NZIFF programmers Bill Gosden and Michael McDonnell viewed 83 submissions to make a shortlist of 12 from which filmmaker Gaylene Preston selected these six finalists. A jury of three will select the winner of the $5,000 Madman Entertainment Jury Prize, while a $3,000 Wallace Friends of the Civic Award will be awarded by donors, the Wallace Foundation and Wallace Media Ltd, to the film or contributor to a film they deem to merit special recognition. The winner of the audience vote takes away the Audience Choice Award, consisting of 25 percent of the box office from the main-centre NZIFF screenings. Gaylene's comments on each film appear in italics.

Melbourne director Gregory Erdstein and co-writer/star Alice Foulcher have created a sassy, slyly sympathetic satire of celebrity dreams in this neatly proportioned debut feature. Polly (Foulcher) can't remember when she didn't fantasise about being an acclaimed actress, and she's already turned down daytime TV to prove it. So it's a rude shock when her identical twin sister Amy (Foulcher again), showing no such qualms, steps from Aussie soap to HBO kudos and starts dating Jared Leto.

Polly's desperate measures are best left to the film to divulge, but they put her firmly in line with the unruly young women driving such era-defining comedies as Bridesmaids and Girls. Let's just say she does not always correct those who mistake her for the real actress in the family. Polly's sorry world is amusingly filled out by a wryly funny ensemble, including Isabel Lucas as a spaced-out compatriot with one toe firmly placed on the Hollywood ladder and Catherine Hill and Andrew Gilbert as doting stage parents, eager to fill scrapbooks with reports of their daughters' stellar achievements.

Spectacular and thrumming with life, this richly layered road movie shows us Africa through the eyes of an eager gap-year backpacker. "I travel as I've always dreamed of doing in a nontouristic and sustainable manner," he emails back home to Brazil. "Spending $2 or $3 a day and giving 80% of my daily budget to the locals who feed and shelter me."

Brazilian director Fellipe Barbosa's film recreates the journey of his friend Gabriel Buchmann who died on the slopes of Malawi's Mount Mulanje in 2009. The African cast is made up almost entirely of people whom the open-hearted young Brasileiro befriended along the way. They play themselves – and deliver personal tributes in voiceover.

The director is alive to his friend's vanity and the ironies attendant on his "total immersion in the heart of Africa." Required by a waitress at a beachside cafe to order a meal, Gabriel is outraged to be mistaken for a mere tourist. But his appetite for the freedom and friendship of the road gives this film irresistible exuberance and heart. There's mystery too: his impatience to knock off the achievements he's set himself brings his brief and brilliant life to an end and sets this wonderfully enlivening film in motion.

A Fantastic Woman

Una mujer fantástica

Chilean director Sebastián Lelio follows his marvellous Gloria (2013) with another resoundingly affirmative portrait of a marginalised woman holding her ground. Santiago bar singer Marina Vidal, played by the sensational trans actress Daniela Vega in her screen debut, is headstrong, vivacious and happily in love. When her lover dies, Marina finds herself, a trans woman living with an older man, immediately suspected of foul play.

The labyrinth of transphobia Marina must navigate is galling to behold, because every insidious blow seems so familiar and credible. It's in the way Marina registers the humiliations without allowing them to bring her down that Lelio's film constantly surprises and Vega's performance enthrals.

"While it's politically charged and very much of the moment in terms of its representation of trans-rights issues, what's perhaps most remarkable is that not a word of direct advocacy is spoken. Any trace of the agenda movie is deftly subsumed in pulsing human drama..."

The movie's stunning revelation, however, is Vega.... It's a transfixing performance, restrained and moving, with a gut-wrenching impact in one hypnotic scene where Marina is forced to pass as a man. Vega even does her own singing, with impressive ability. No less than Paulina García's astonishing work in Gloria, this is acting at its most fearless. The movie represents a huge leap in terms of trans narratives onscreen, but by any standard, it's a powerful drama of a woman whose suffering never dims her determination to keep moving forward." — David Rooney, Hollywood Reporter

"It may be a timely film, but it is its timelessness, as well as its depths of compassion, that qualify it as a great one."

— Ryan Gilbey, The Guardian

"The life of legendary Canadian folk artist Maud Lewis is painted in exquisite detail in this impeccably acted, incredibly affecting biopic. At the beating heart of Aisling Walsh's film is Sally Hawkins (Happy-Go-Lucky) who not only captures the contorted physicality of this self-taught painter, who contended with rheumatoid arthritis, but also exudes the creative spirit raging within her despite her debilitated frame.

The film's backdrop is undeniably cinematic: the rugged beauty and expansive vistas of 1930s Nova Scotia. Likewise, its primary setting is unspeakably intimate: the comically tiny one-room house that Maud shares with misanthropic fish peddler Everett (Ethan Hawke)...

Undaunted by his curmudgeonly nature, she's inspired by the natural splendour surrounding their hovel to take up a paint brush. Operating with no preconceptions of what 'art' should be, her charmingly unsophisticated, uniquely one-dimensional paintings strike a chord with tastemakers... Her exuberance proves infectious."

In a small German town, in the aftermath of WWI, young Anna mourns her fiancé Frantz who died in the trenches. One day a French soldier, Adrien (Pierre Niney, surely the leading French screen actor of his generation), arrives and lays flowers at Frantz's grave. In the war-battered community passions run high at the effrontery of the Frenchman. Among those most affected is Anna, who decides to get to know the sad young stranger. As she draws him out about his pre-war friendship with Frantz in Paris, our picture of their generation struggling to recover after the betrayals of war deepens and takes unexpected turns.

Expanding on the plot of a little remembered Lubitsch film from 1932, director François Ozon couches his elegiac tale in the formal poise of an earlier era's 'quality' historical drama. There's one distinctive difference: as always for Ozon, the film's title notwithstanding, it is the complex journey of the female protagonist that most engages him. Tracing Anna's return to the world of the living, actress Paula Beer is a revelation.

Happy End

Happy End sees Michael Haneke, Austria's micro-surgeon of European decadence, in black comic mode, applying his scalpel to a rich Calais family, the Laurents, who own a construction company and cohabit uneasily in separate apartments housed within a luxurious estate.

"A series of unfortunate events – an overdose (or was it?), a wall collapse on a job site, a suicide attempt – sends the family spinning, and Haneke mines strange comedy out of the Laurents' relatively emotionless, passive reactions. The various narrative threads don't so much come together as they do flutter on the same sinister wind..."

Happy End is as amusingly inscrutable and coy about its themes as his masterful 2005 creeper Caché was. But Happy End is a wryer work, a grim satire that skewers the isolation of modern technology and the moral failings of polite society with a grave face. Haneke has assembled a stellar cast to illustrate all this, including a typically laser-focused Isabelle Huppert as the head of the family company, her Amour co-star Jean-Louis Trintignant as the family's senile, fatalist patriarch, and a striking Fantine Harduin as Ève, a young scion of the family who may be the most dangerous one of all."

— Richard Lawson, Vanity Fair

"For a satire on bourgeois values that essentially sees privilege as a terminal disease whose symptoms include boredom, indolence, alienation, lovelessness, pettiness and perhaps even sociopathy, and to which the only honest response is suicide or euthanasia, it's very funny."

— Jessica Kiang, Sight & Sound

"Happy End is a satirical nightmare of haute-bourgeois European prosperity: as stark, brilliant and unforgiving as a halogen light."

— Peter Bradshaw, The Guardian

One family's tragedy offers the hope of renewed life for another in this exquisitely modulated drama pivoting on the delicate advocacy of a hospital's organ transplant team. Eschewing melodrama and sentimentality, Katell Quillévéré evokes the momentous forces at play for each of the key participants with emotional clarity and weighs the transference of life in passages of sheer cinematic exaltation.

"What sounds like fodder for a routinely gripping episode of ER is complicated with rare depths of personal and sensual detail in French director Katell Quillévéré's sublimely compassionate, heart-crushing third feature Heal the Living. More polished but no less authentically humane than her previous works Suzanne and Love Like Poison, this spidering ensemble piece – adapted from Maylis de Kerangal's internationally acclaimed 2014 novel – boasts beautifully pitched performances from a handpicked cast that includes Tahar Rahim and Emmanuelle Seigner. But it's Quillévéré's soaring visual and sonic acumen (with an assist from composer Alexandre Desplat, here in matchless form) that suffuses a potentially familiar hospital weeper with true grace." — Guy Lodge, Variety

A radiant Juliette Binoche absorbs our attention through every moment of this unexpected foray into romantic dramedy by the great French director Claire Denis, written in collaboration with the novelist and playwright Christine Angot. A leading light of the 'autofiction' movement, Angot is famous for the frankness with which she has placed her own emotional life on the printed page.

Binoche plays Isabelle, a Parisian artist, recently divorced from the father of her ten-year-old daughter. Alone and unleashed, she remains undaunted in her yearning to connect sexually and romantically with a succession of men.

There's wry comedy in Isabelle's impatience to cut to the unspoken intent in their blandishments, though the delight of consumption – so empathetically evoked by Denis – is likely to be followed by bemusement or dismay until she rallies for the next suitor.

"A series of richly human encounters that flow, meander and pulse with life." — Justin Chang, LA Times

The Midwife

Sage femme

Two of France's most distinguished stars, Catherine Deneuve and Catherine Frot share the screen in this touching tale of the unlikely connection of opposites. Claire (Frot) is a dedicated and tireless midwife whose sense of pride and responsibility clash with the depersonalised efficiency of modern hospitals. She's raised her son solo and is well pleased that he's made it to medical school. One day she receives a strange phone call, a voice from the past. Béatrice (Deneuve), the extravagant and frivolous mistress of her late father, has pressing news and wants to see her again, over a drink, 30 years after having disappeared without a trace. Claire, habitually conscientious and sober, bristles at the prospect of having this foolish woman back in her life, but prepares to meet her regardless.

Writer/director Martin Provost (Séraphine) has gifted two expert actresses with marvellously individual roles for an entertaining and emotional pas de deux. As old resentments are faced down, they tacitly acknowledge common fears, begin to enjoy each other's shortcomings and build anew on their shared past.

"Martin Provost's The Midwife once again proves that French filmmakers know how to treat actresses of a certain age... As the reigning grande dame of French cinema, Deneuve could easily rest on her laurels, only taking roles that befit and reinforce her stature. Which makes her vulnerable turn here all the more special. Playing a heart-on-her-sleeve, still-crazy-after-all-these-years free spirit, Deneuve delivers her best performance in recent memory." — Ben Coll, Indiewire

"A bittersweet delight written to order for two consummate performers who inhabit their diametrically opposed characters with satisfying élan."

Director Stéphane Brizé (Mademoiselle Chambon) applies his keen eye for social observation to costume drama with this striking adaptation of Guy de Maupassant's first published novel. A young aristocrat named Jeanne (Judith Chemla) raised and educated by kind, progressive parents seems poised on the brink of modern womanhood, but finds herself ill-prepared for a feckless husband and a pious, hypocritical society.

"The pathos and wonder of A Woman's Life comes from its recognition that Jeanne is at once a captive of cruel circumstances and a wilful, intelligent human being. Her kinship with other 19th-century fictional heroines – Emma Bovary, Jane Eyre, Anna Karenina – is evident. She suffers, but she also reads, thinks and desires...

A Woman's Life... moves calmly and deliberately, but it never feels slow. Instead, its images and scenes are suffused by an intensity that seems almost to be a quality of the light and air as they play across Ms Chemla's watchful, sometimes inscrutable features." — A.O. Scott, NY Times

French writer-director Laurent Cantet, Palme d'Or winner in 2008 for The Class, returns with a suspenseful film, based on a true story, about a writer's relationship with a right-wing student who troubles and intrigues her.

"This story of a successful crime novel author who is invited to a small town to take charge of a writing project is part social survey, part political documentary, with the potential flicker of a love story and the touch of a thriller.

The Workshop conveys a stunningly authentic portrait of French youth today; their class, racial and occupational concerns. The seven young people in author Olivia's (Marina Fois) class represent a snapshot of France's colorful young population, no intellectuals with writing experience among them (all are played by non-professional actors). Charged with producing a book to promote the image of La Ciotat, a small seaside town located between Marseille and Toulon, Olivia soon discovers that the one subject which unites her students is murder – though they can't quite agree on what kind of murder they should write about, or how to treat it." — Dan Fainaru, Screendaily

The Killing of a Sacred Deer

This new movie by the Greek director Yorgos Lanthimos (The Lobster, Dogtooth) is a meticulously wrought chiller, visiting the retribution of classical tragedy on a fatally flawed surgeon, played by Colin Farrell.

“The rich vein of unsettling darkness and psychological unease that ripples like a treacherous underground stream beneath the absurdist humour of Yorgos Lanthimos’ work becomes a brooding requiem of domestic horror in his masterfully realized fifth feature, The Killing of a Sacred Deer. Reaching back to classical Greek tragedy for inspiration, this hypnotic tale of guilt and retribution provides an even more riveting role for Colin Farrell after his collaboration on the director’s English-language debut, The Lobster. He’s flanked by a never-better Nicole Kidman and a performance of chilling effectiveness from emerging Irish talent Barry Keoghan in a thriller that frequently invites comparison to vintage Polanski…”

The new film’s grim scenario of a family under dire threat will make it hard for some to watch. But the impressive rigor of its craft, the skilfully subdued intensity of the acting and the startling originality of the story will make the film unmissable for anyone who cares about bold filmmaking...

This is a movie that closes its grip on our fears by infinitesimal degrees, demonstrating that bone-deep, tightly clamped anxiety can be scarier than screaming terror.” — David Rooney, Hollywood Reporter

“A film of clean hands, cold heart, and near-Satanic horror, it was garlanded with boos at its Cannes press screening and it is absolutely fucking brilliant.” — Jessica Kiang, The Playlist

Seána Kerslake is completely winning as the larrikin Mary out to prove she’s not a loser in this funny, soulful Irish romcom. While Mary’s been doing time for a spontaneous gesture she’d rather forget, her best girlfriend Charlene has disappeared, heart and soul, into wedding planning land. Mary gets out of jail in time for the big day, bridesmaid’s speech at the ready. But oops, Charlene is wavering on having her wild and crazy old mate at the top table and has cut her back to a single invite. All Mary’s hurt and indignation are channelled into a single mission: showing up with a plus-one.

As she assesses partner options, Kerslake makes Mary’s mix of bluntness, sarcasm and minimal self-awareness both hilarious and touching. If the origins in a stage play by Yasmine Akram show in the adaptation by writer/director brothers Darren and Colin Thornton, it’s simply because the dialogue, quick and salty, is such a driving force. The Drogheda settings hum with life and devilry.

Call Me by Your Name

Luca Guadagnino, the Italian writer-director of I Am Love and A Bigger Splash, winds back the flamboyance to powerful effect in this languorous, sun-filled and wonderfully empathetic tale of first love. Timothée Chalamet is riveting as Elio, a smart, musically gifted 17-year-old hanging out for the summer of 1983 with his parents at their villa in northern Italy. Elio is obliged to move out of his bedroom to make way for his father's American research assistant, 20-something Oliver (Armie Hammer).

Brash and handsome, Oliver immediately sets local hearts aflutter and irritates the hell out of Elio. But the two increasingly find themselves together. A dance of attraction and retreat begins and gradually consumes them both.

Elio's great leap into emotional risk touches everyone in his idyllic world: the depth of understanding granted to him in this film feels like a gift to every one of us.

The film's stock of sensual pleasures extends to its exquisite use of music, including the Psychedelic Furs, Elio's amusingly bad-tempered renditions of Bach and three perfectly attuned songs by Sufjan Stevens.

"Luca Guadagnino likes to show off his homeland as a place of sensual self-discovery... But he's never mounted the total swirl of sultry weather, budding libidos and teenage confusion that marks his new drama, Call Me by Your Name, a triumphant, heartbreaking tale of coming out based on André Aciman's acclaimed 2007 novel... Sweet and salty, his movie burns like a suntan." — Joshua Rothkopf, Time Out NY

"A swirling wonder, a film about coming of age, about the secrets of youth, the magic of summer, the beauty of Italy."

A mysterious visitor offers gratification to the sexually oppressed in this arresting mix of hard-edged realism and bio-sci-fi from Mexican provocateur Amat Escalante (Heli). Alejandra and her husband Angel live with their young sons in Guanajuato, Mexico. While the swaggering Angel lords it over his family, he's also lining up his next furtive hotel room hook-up with Fabián, Alejandra's brother. The gentle humanitarian in the film, Fabián works in the local hospital. He too strains under the yoke of the domineering Angel.

One day a young stranger arrives at the clinic, strung out but strangely exhilarated. Soon she befriends Fabián and Alejandra and observes that maybe they should be getting some of what she's been getting. She directs them to a chalet in the countryside where an elderly couple harbour the mysterious guest. Not everyone granted access to the chalet comes out exhilarated. As in the fierce Heli, Escalante's indictment of posturing machismo is graphic, incisive and super-realistic. Envisaging its nemesis as nature consumed by sexual ecstasy, he's created one memorably weird mash-up of a movie.

An architect, feeling past his use-by date, and his long-lost elephant take a road trip across Thailand to find their childhood home in this rueful, funny Sundance award winner. Once a cutting edge architect in Bangkok, Thana is facing the imminent demolition of the mall that was once his crowning glory. His wife's flagrant lack of concern is doing nothing to quiet his fear of obsolescence.

Wandering the streets of the city he is amazed to come across a fellow throwback, Pop Aye, the elephant he grew up with in his rural village. On a whim he buys Pop Aye and sets off on a road trip, walking and hitching back to where they came from. On the way they befriend a succession of equally uprooted characters, from a vagabond who seems to foretell the future to a ladyboy with karaoke aspirations.

In her debut feature writer/director Kirsten Tan takes full advantage of the beautiful scenery, characterful actors and a charismatic elephant to tell a story about our drift from fundamental human needs and values. Her tale of man and pachyderm is unsentimental, gently comic and thoughtful.

Summer 1993

As enthralling a child's-eye view as has graced the screen in many a year, Summer 1993 draws us into the new world of six-year-old Frida, transplanted from Barcelona to live with her aunt, uncle and three-year-old cousin Anna in the country. It's summer and living around this bohemian couple is certainly easy, but adjustment for the little girl is not easy at all. While Anna fastens like glue onto her brand new older sister, Frida's not so sure she actually needs a sister, let alone a new pair of parents. It's not long before we deduce that the real parents have died and Frida's change of scene will be permanent.

Catalan director Carla Simón's feature debut is autobiographical. Her memory of childish schemes and dreams is acute and bracingly free of sentimentality. The performances she's drawn from the two children are miraculously unaffected, so when Frida leads her trusting little charge up the garden path you may want to leap into the movie and sort things out. What's just as piercing is the filmmaker's appreciation of the kindness, imagination and patience required of her aunt and uncle to convince a defiant little orphan that she was important and loved.

Though programmed in the festival's Young Adult section, Summer 1993 took the prize for Best First Feature at this year's Berlinale. It's a beautiful film.

"A summer of troubled and troubling experience is reshaped into a delicately crafted, moving filmic memoir by Carla Simón... That the film draws deeply on personal recollection can be sensed in virtually every frame." — Jonathan Holland, Hollywood Reporter

Carla Simón's autobiographical jewel is one of the most evocative and affecting depictions of childhood seen in years.

A communist-era schoolroom is a microcosm of outrageous political favouritism in this highly enjoyable return to form from Czech director Jan Hřebejk (Divided We Fall). The setting is Bratislava in 1983, drolly evoked in an array of wacky wallpapers and goofy sweaters, where a parent-teacher meeting is hearing the case against the eponymous Comrade Držděchová. Under her watch some of the brightest pupils have been receiving the poorest grades.

Their aggrieved parents claim that she aids and abets other pupils in direct proportion to the goods and services she receives from their parents: a free haircut here, free electrical repairs there. Even more intimate favours have been suggested. What can the parents of the successful students say in response to such slanders? Their faked rectitude is astutely caricatured in a nimbly scripted, increasingly tense battle of wits.

While the accusers fret and stew, their hapless children suffer the consequences, and we root against the odds for the bully's comeuppance. In the title role Zuzana Mauréry is a sneaky, deplorable wonder, a richly realised screen villain surpassed in 2017 only by her real-world equivalents.

Born under the sign of Almodóvar, Paco León's homeland hit finds comedy and a little pathos in the mismatched sexual kinks of a group of interconnected Spaniards. Paco (director León) and Ana, for example, work on reigniting their passion by visiting bondage parties and furry nightclubs. Natalia, meanwhile, discovers after getting mugged that she has a case of harpaxophilia, helpfully explained on-screen as "sexual arousal being produced by being robbed with violence," while José learns he has somnophilia, sexual pleasure caused by watching someone sleep. If you caught a whiff of the non-consensual in any of this, it may or may not encourage you to learn that in this film's sunny view of gratification, nobody ends up feeling used.

A remake of The Little Death, it could hardly differ more in spirit, transposing the action to a sweltering Madrid and celebrating difference, its message never more sweetly displayed than when a hearing-impaired call centre worker (fetish: silk) helps a voiceless customer indulge his fantasies through a phone sex line.

"My Life As a Courgette is a stop-motion cartoon, blessed with both a Swiss director (Claude Barras), and an ambition not to do anything the conventional way... Skillfully adapted by Céline Sciamma (Girlhood) from the hit 2002 young adult novel by Gilles Paris, the film has a keen eye and ear for the way children process the inconceivable (neglect, abuse, deportation, murder)... The feeling of melancholy is undercut by the resilience of these children, their ability to forge relationships and create life out of chaos...

My Life As a Courgette never sacrifices what's true for what's trite and easier to sell. This is animation as an art form, inspiring and indelible." — Peter Travers, Rolling Stone

Ethel & Ernest

Director:

Screenplay: Roger Mainwood.
Based on the graphic novel by
Raymond Briggs
Editor: Richard Overall
Animation director: Peter Dodd
Music: Carl Davis, Paul McCartney
Voices: Jim Broadbent,
Brenda Blethyn, Luke Treadaway
Festivals: London 2016
PG violence

This funny and poignant animated feature perfectly captures the tone and visual style of Raymond Briggs' tender graphic novel about his 'very ordinary' parents, from their first trip to the pictures in 1928 (Hangman's House with Victor McLagen!) to their deaths, just months apart, in 1971.

There's a canny social and political history of Britain traced through their experiences and amusingly expressed through decades of gentle crossfire between Labour Dad and Tory Mum. A lifelong milkman with few complaints, Ernest keeps a close eye on world events, while Ethel, a former lady's maid, would rather sleep than watch the moon landing on TV and bristles at any suggestion that their little household in Wimbledon might be considered working class.

The voice work of Jim Broadbent and Brenda Blethyn is a treat, with Luke Treadaway as the grown-up Raymond who came of age in the 60s and headed to art school – much to his mother's dismay. A soundtrack marking out the years in popular music also features original contributions from Carl Davis and Paul McCartney.

In Zambian-born, Welsh-raised director Rungano Nyoni's truly surreal tale, a nine-year-old village girl is accused of witchcraft and hauled off to do witches' work. Soon she's identifying the culprit in a police line-up, bringing on the rain, or just posing for tourists. Though accusing someone of witchcraft is illegal in Zambia, Nyoni's tale is based on continuing practices she observed herself living for a month in a witches' camp. The awfulness of her story is leavened by the merciless satirical eye she trains on superstition's perpetrators – the men who put these 'witches' to work.

"When you've been told you're a witch, forced to live as a witch, forced to act as a witch, you might eventually start believing you're a witch... Nyoni has made the subject of her debut feature... a biting satire attacking the ignorance which provides oxygen for this hokum... Underneath the humor there's staunch determination from the director. 'It's so important that we're not precious about [witchcraft], otherwise nothing gets done,' she said." — Thomas Page, CNN.com

Lady Macbeth

Victorian patriarchy meets its match in this juicy period drama. The title alerts us to murderous intent, but the source material here is one step removed from Shakespeare: this striking debut is a stylised reinvention of the 1865 Russian novella Lady Macbeth of the Mtsensk District. Katherine (Florence Pugh) is a young bride, a virtual captive in the draughty mansion of her dour mine owner husband. Her flinty father-in-law pressures her for an heir, though the sadistic ritual unfolding nightly in the marital bedroom scarcely favours reproduction. The incredulous Katherine plots her liberation. If she's prepared to contemplate murder to escape this disgusting prison, what won't she do to guarantee her pleasure when she finds it in the arms of the taunting hunk (Cosmo Jarvis) who runs the household stable? Her maid (Naomi Ackie) stands by, rendered mute by the trouble she sees. Pugh, in virtually every scene, is mesmerising – her insolence smouldering as she's corseted into tight bodices and hooped skirts, her abandon as sumptuous as her flesh when she casts them off.

Twenty-first century identity politics flicker through this revisionist masterpiece theatre. Colour-blind casting adds a frisson of racism to the routine abuse of the servant class while Katherine's self-empowerment may feel proto-feminist in intent.

"Oldroyd coolly subverts the fusty conventions of British costume drama... [the film] deliberately incurs as many debts to Chandler and Hammett as it does to Austen or Eliot."

— Jonathan Murray, Cineaste

"A barbed feminist fable of class, cruelty and sexual power that feels absolutely true to its period and uncannily attuned to the present moment."

— A.O. Scott, NY Times

Twelve-year-old English boy Conor O'Malley (Lewis MacDougall) is a lonely kid. His father lives in California; his loving mother (Felicity Jones) is terminally ill, and his grandmother (Sigourney Weaver) makes a chilly substitute. His sole companion appears nightly in the intimidating form of a gigantic tree creature (voiced by Liam Neeson) who tells him fantastic tales of apothecaries and kings, handsome princes and wicked stepmothers. The monster challenges Conor to discover the truth in the stories that might give him the strength to make the best of his sorry lot.

J.A. Bayona's adaptation of Patrick Ness' young adult novel draws on a spectacular arsenal of CGI, shifting into ravishing painterly animation for the monster's enthralling tales, to impart tough and fortifying wisdom about life, and about stories too.

"Mixing horror movie imagery with honest, heart-wrenching human truths, Bayona has created a dark, coming-of-age masterpiece... Entertaining, tonally impeccable, and heartbreaking, this is a monster movie with a very human heart." — Marten Carlson, Consequence of Sound

The dinner-party-from-hell genre is delivered a short sharp shock by veteran British writer-director Sally Potter in this gleaming black comedy. Kristin Scott Thomas is hosting a group of friends to celebrate her promotion as shadow Minister of Health. Husband Timothy Spall plays aggressive DJ, otherwise upright but catatonic in the living room as the guests arrive. These include her best friend (Patricia Clarkson, wryly acidic), her life-coach boyfriend (Bruno Ganz, wondrously inane), a coked-up venture capitalist (Cillian Murphy) who arrives sans wife, and an earnest lesbian couple (Emily Mortimer and Cherry Jones) intent on sharing some good news. Silly them.

"One shouldn't pull a muscle... in reaching for the subtext of Potter's witty shaggy-dog story: Its giddy in-the-moment pleasures are enough... Months after the US election campaign turned an intended jibe into a rallying cry, Sally Potter's latest further proves that there's pleasure, pride or both to be taken in being a nasty woman."

The Beguiled

Sofia Coppola was crowned Best Director at Cannes this year for arguably her best film to date: a crisp, unsettling, absolutely essential remake of Don Siegel's 1971 oddity starring Clint Eastwood. Everything about this new interpretation beguiles, from its exciting cast of fresh and familiar faces, to its unexpected jabs of humour, to its almost shocking sense of brevity – though above all else, it is Coppola's gaze that enthral, placing female desire and self-preservation at the film's tipping point. — Tim Wong

"In Sofia Coppola's elegantly spare, psychosexual Civil War drama The Beguiled, a wounded Union soldier, Colonel John McBurney (Colin Farrell), is discovered in the surrounding woods of a Virginia all-girls seminary school, circa 1864... The girls and women of the property, overseen by headmaster Martha Farnsworth (Nicole Kidman) slowly begin to vie for the attention of this enemy from the other side, conveniently laid up with a bum leg just down the hall from their bedrooms...

The Eastwood version was a kinky joke of a psychodrama: a retrograde curiosity about a gaggle of repressed, sheltered Confederate belles being seduced by the manliest Yankee of them all... Coppola deepens the material's implicit wellsprings of loneliness and longing, mitigating the sexism by diverting the point of view away from McBurney to the women he's attempting to manipulate...

It's a magnificently shot movie, and often a very funny one, as tense dinners with the stranger from the North transform into duels of innuendo." — A.A. Dowd, AV Club

"Coppola's new take burnishes a vision of hard-won female autonomy... [and] brings a dreaminess... and a minimalism where before nightmares had reigned."

— Isabel Stevens, Sight & Sound

In this inventive, Gondry-esque comedy, SNL's earnest goofball Kyle Mooney is a man obsessed by the only TV show he's ever seen, a little-known series about a magic bear saving the world.

James (Mooney) has lived in a bunker for 25 years. His only contact is with his parents (Mark Hamill and Jane Adams), and his only source of external stimulation is the 80s-style 'Brigsby Bear Adventures', delivered weekly on VHS cassettes. He's probably the world's most intense student of the Brigsby myths. When James has to leave his bunker and meet other people, he loses access to new episodes. The slow-dawning solution to this emergency celebrates sweet fellowship in extreme fan culture, and the liberating power of sheer silliness with the conviction of the true believer.

"Brigsby Bear's strongest asset (well, after the gobs of in-universe verbiage that come spilling from James' mouth) is Kyle Mooney's extraordinary performance... To hang around James and soak up some of his positivity (even if it is a little unclear if he knows what's going on half the time) is a joy." — Jordan Hoffman, Vanity Fair

The Lost City of Z

In the early 20th century British explorer Percy Fawcett made eight expeditions into the Amazonian jungle pursuing evidence of a lost, highly evolved civilisation. James Gray's spectacular film collapses those expeditions into a tidier history, but the enquiring spirit of the movie holds closely to the wanderlust of the incurable adventurer. It's hard to think of another film on such epic scale that contains so careful and nuanced a portrait of the explorer hero or his conflicted relationship with the society that he, in name at least, represents. Charlie Hunnam's Fawcett is a commanding slow burn from class resentment to mystic quest, with Robert Pattinson barely recognisable as his companion in adventure. Sienna Miller makes a powerful impression as the wife chafing to join him but forever left behind. The cinematography, by Darius Khondji (Seven, Delicatessen), captures the seductive allure of jungle and river in ravishing imagery fit only for the giant screen.

"The Lost City of Z is a miraculous movie, at once moving, intimidating, and gorgeous to behold. It's a tale of colonial exploration that's aware of the sins of the past, and a portrait of a driven, obsessive, flawed male protagonist that avoids the clichés of the genre. It feels like a work of classic Hollywood cinema, but without the arch, mannered quality that can come with a contemporary director trying to harken back to the past. Gray's film is beguiling and poetic, capable of gluing you to the screen for every second of its languorous running time and lingering in the brain for weeks after." — David Sims, The Atlantic

"Pictures with the grand sweep and dreamy energy of The Lost City of Z don't come along every year – they barely come along at all."

M offensive language

One of the wonders of this or any year, David Lowery's film takes the homeliest of images for the supernatural – a sheet with two forlorn eyeholes – and places it at the centre of a layered and piercing contemplation of existential mystery. As the ghost of a young husband (Casey Affleck) observes the grief of his partner (Rooney Mara) and then lingers through subsequent tenancies of the house they shared, the helpless ghost's attachment to the place he loved becomes increasingly impersonal and unsettled. Lowery's theme is realised in delicate, folkloric images of a distinctly American paradise lost, its hushed mood disrupted by abrupt bursts of activity – notably Will Oldham on a brilliant jag as a drunken doom theorist – and radical bends in time.

"A Ghost Story has the structure and rhythm of a musical suite, with Lowery working variations on the same themes, the same characters, and the same location. The result can be lyrical and poetic, or more naturalistic and minimalist. In both cases, A Ghost Story is absolutely mesmerizing, with an anything-goes quality that's endlessly fascinating." — Noel Murray, The Playlist

"Two stars are born in Patti Cake$, one of those rare crowd-pleasers that earn their love honestly. The first is the sensational Danielle Macdonald, who plays the second: the movie's title character, also known as Patricia Dombrowski, a poor white New Jersey rapper who, with her tiny diverse posse yearns to cross the bridge to fame and fortune. Written and directed by Jeremy Jasper, the movie treads familiar aspirational ground: Patricia has dreams, pluck and obstacles (she's routinely taunted because of her weight), but her outsider status isn't fetishized or romanticized, and she's divinely real." — Manohla Dargis, NY Times

"It's hard to equate what a star-making turn this is for Macdonald.

The audience at the film's world premiere gave an audible gasp when she answered her first question because no one had a clue she was Australian let alone not American. In a movie like this, filmmakers often have to convince the audience an actor playing a musician is as good as the story says there are. At no point in Patti Cake$ is there ever a hint that Macdonald is unable to legitimately rap. She's simply a revelation." — Gregory Ellwood, The Playlist

The visual splendour of the natural world and its extraordinary creatures is captured on a grand scale in this true-life adventure from DisneyNature – ideal for young animal lovers.

In an epic tale of four seasons, we follow some of the animal families that populate various corners of China's expansive terrain. Meet Ya Ya, a panda bear mother guiding her growing baby Mei Mei as she begins to explore and seek independence; Tao Tao, a mischievous two-year-old golden snub-nosed monkey nudged toward self-sufficiency after the arrival of his new baby sister; and Dawa, a mother snow leopard – an elusive animal rarely caught on camera – facing the very real drama of raising her two cubs in one of the harshest and most unforgiving environments on the planet.

The footage captured on this epic journey into the wilds of China is breathtaking for its access and intimacy – presented as an opportunity for young audiences to relate the natural world to their own lives, and to contemplate the mysteries of the circle of life. — Nicola Marshall

"The four Walker children have finally convinced their parents to let them set off on their own for a sailing adventure during summer vacation. Their summer of freedom quickly turns into a fierce turf war when they learn their island camp has been claimed by the boisterous Amazons, and find themselves caught in the midst of some nefarious international intrigue that's landed in their sleepy byways. Based on the beloved English novels by Arthur Ransome, Swallows and Amazons is filled with dramas big and small... that come together to create a fluidly captivating story of bravery set against the languorous beauty of the English countryside." — New York International Children's Film Festival

"Arthur Ransome's classic pre-war tale of childhood adventure Swallows and Amazons still evokes a golden, prelapsarian age when kids were free range and mucking about in boats was the acme of excitement... Director Philippa Lowthorpe and screenwriter Andrea Gibb have tweaked one or two details of Ransome's original. And they've added an extra dash of derring-do. But at heart their film is as cosily nostalgic as the cherished 1974 version." — Jason Best, Movie Talk

WELCOME TO MY LIFE

FRAMING REALITY

The profusion of excellent documentaries submitted to us is staggering. We try to steer a course that favours formal sophistication and complexity, while allowing ourselves on occasion to fall for the most forthright advocacy and appeals to the heartstrings.

You will find more fine examples filling the Big Nights and Aotearoa sections of the programme. In other words, documentaries are everywhere at NZIFF.

Music: Ali Helnwein
With: Bjarke Ingels
In Danish and English, with English subtitles

As a kid, Danish architect Bjarke Ingels considered the flat roof on his parents' house to be a waste of space – with potential. In 2016, his plans for a smoke ring-blowing power plant with a ski slope on its roof in Copenhagen attracted attention outside the usual architectural press. Time magazine named him, at the age of 42, one of the world's 100 most influential people of the year.

Filmmaker Kaspar Astrup Schröder filmed Ingels on and off over several years, and the portrait of a driven man stretched increasingly thin is both compelling and alarming. Early in the film there's wry coverage of the fallout that occurs when the power company asks who's paying for the ski slope, but there's a world of difference between fielding such paltry objections on home ground and opening a New York office to embark on mammoth projects that will join the most famous architectural skyline of them all.

Schröder documents the architect's struggle to balance ambition, ill health and relationships with remarkable intimacy, but his film never feels closer to the heart of its subject than when it lets him talk about buildings, marker at hand, dashing off lightning illustrations of everything he says.

Director Karina Holden has made an empowering conservationist documentary showcasing the work and advocacy of six 'ocean guardians'. Madison Stewart, who grew up on the Great Barrier Reef, has become an underwater filmmaker, using her camera and social media to increase public awareness of the plight of sharks. Mark Dia, regional oceans campaigner for Greenpeace South Asia, uncovers illegal fishing practices, corruption and labour abuses in the seafood industry.

Following the surf was what led Tim Silverwood to combat the appalling ubiquity of plastic waste in sea and on shoreline, Dr Jennifer Lavers is a marine eco-toxicologist, seen in the film patiently extracting some of that waste from the bellies of endangered sea birds. On Cape York Peninsula the Nanum Wunghtim rangers clear the coastal waters of the vast ghost nets abandoned by fishing boats and trapping sea life. Proving that conservation is not the sole preserve of the young, pioneering diver, shark advocate, artist and Australian heroine Valerie Taylor is cautiously upbeat at 82. The ocean will recover, she says, "if we leave it alone."

The Farthest

More than 12 billion miles away a spaceship the size of a bus has left our Solar System and is entering deep space. Slowly dying within its heart is a nuclear generator that will beat for perhaps another decade before the lights on Voyager finally go out. But this little craft could travel on for millions of years, carrying the 'Golden Record' bearing recordings and images of life on Earth.

In this spectacular and immensely enjoyable documentary, some of the women and men who have worked on NASA's Voyager mission look back in wonder and sheer joy at what they achieved and the extraordinary wealth of knowledge that the tiny spaceship has beamed back to earth.

As many of them ruefully acknowledge, it's the most inward-looking, least scientific aspect of the project – that famous Golden Record with its Bach, Beethoven, Balinese gamelans and Chuck Berry – that's dominated the public imagination around Voyager. This film, in which they retrace Voyager's 40-year journey and successive revelations from Jupiter (1979), Saturn (1981), Uranus (1986) and Neptune (1989), provides the best possible hope of changing that. When these enthusiasts talk about the best science project of all time, their passion for exploring the great beyond is inspiring.

"It's the right film at the right time, a cathartic moment in which audiences will shed tears for a little machine made of silicon and aluminium, wrapped in tin foil and running on less computing power than our smartphones, yet which will outlive us all – perhaps by billions of years." — Fionnuala Halligan, Screendaily

"This 40-year retrospective of the ongoing Voyager missions brings the humor and humanity to the science."

At his most powerful in the years after WW II, developer Robert Moses was determined to modernise New York and speed up the traffic. He demolished great swathes of housing to build high-rise accommodation and construct superhighways. David to his Goliath, Jane Jacobs led a grass-roots campaign to thwart his plan to plough an expressway across town, right through Lower Manhattan. Author of The Death and Life of Great American Cities, Jacobs had a vision of urban life that involved people, neighbourhoods, heritage and habitation on a human scale, qualities Lower Manhattan enjoyed in abundance. Director Matt Tyrnauer (Valentino: The Last Emperor) has fashioned a lively documentary about the enduring issues enunciated so clearly in their clash.

"Tyrnauer transforms what could be a staid profile film into an urgent story about the dangers of 'urban renewal,' something Jacobs herself would admire... How do we retain neighborhood diversity amid rapid gentrification? Can a metropolis retain its humanity when everyone's living in high-rises?" — April Wolfe, Village Voice

In English and Dutch, with English subtitles

Belgian designer Dries Van Noten gets the fashion documentary treatment in this intimate and understated portrait. All the requisite fashion film fixtures are on show: gorgeous clothes, stunning models and plenty of sartorial drama.

For 30 years, Van Noten has carved a successful career as an independent designer. Dries provides a peek at Van Noten's creative process as he and his team prepare four new collections. His clothes revel in clashing prints and the incorporation of low and high culture, exhibiting an unrivalled eye for detail. In a world where we're constantly told what's hot or not, designers like Van Noten provide a unique counterpoint to an industry driven by trends. Although the new collections are the film's focus, Dries is also a chance to revisit Van Noten's past through archival footage of his previous shows. These are some of the film's most insightful scenes, allowing Van Noten to chart the evolution of his abilities and confidence as a designer.

Like its subject, Dries is a quietly modest film that allows the opulent fashion to soar. — Chris Tse

House of Z

"As good looking and stylish as its subject, House of Z is a portrait of the artist as a young man. Famously well connected, Zac Posen rode a rocket ship to fame and success at the age of 21. But his is a cautionary tale of what happens to those whose PR machines are steps ahead of reality. As quickly as the handsome Zac made a name for himself, he found himself on the receiving end of damaging gossip, bad reviews and dropping sales. Told with the help of a star-studded cast, including Puff Daddy, Naomi Campbell and Claire Danes, this all-access story charts the rise and fall – and rise again – of a fashion world wunderkind."

— Aisha Jamal, Hot Docs

"Fashion has a dark side. Not all runways and lipstick and fishtail gowns," Posen says about his chosen milieu, and while House of Z is aesthetically quite straightforward, it receives a jolt of unique energy from Posen's own front-and-center participation in this portrait... He comes across as a young man humbled by failure and appreciative of the opportunities he still has, not to mention now capable of viewing his past through a more mature, objective lens...

In Posen's continued dedication to making dresses in his atelier – and by personally draping gowns over female bodies, as the foundation of his process – House of Z captures the way in which direct hands-on engagement is vital to an artist's continued relevance, and vitality." — Nick Schager, Variety

"An enjoyable doc overflowing with stunning pieces of clothing, both on models and on its star."

I Am Not Your Negro

"Whatever you think about the past and future of what used to be called 'race relations' – white supremacy and the resistance to it, in plainer English – this movie will make you think again, and may even change your mind. Though its principal figure, the novelist, playwright and essayist James Baldwin, is a man who has been dead for nearly 30 years, you would be hard-pressed to find a movie that speaks to the present moment with greater clarity and force, insisting on uncomfortable truths and drawing stark lessons from the shadows of history..."

To call I Am Not Your Negro a movie about James Baldwin would be to understate [director Raoul] Peck's achievement. It's more of a posthumous collaboration, an uncanny and thrilling communion between the filmmaker... and his subject. The voice-over narration (read by Samuel L. Jackson) is entirely drawn from Baldwin's work. Much of it comes from notes and letters written in the mid-1970s, when Baldwin was somewhat reluctantly sketching out a book, never to be completed, about the lives and deaths of Medgar Evers, Malcolm X and Martin Luther King Jr....

His published and unpublished words – some of the most powerful and penetrating ever assembled on the tortured subject of American identity – accompany images from old talk shows and news reports, from classic movies and from our own decidedly non-post-racial present...

I Am Not Your Negro is a thrilling introduction to his work, a remedial course in American history, and an advanced seminar in racial politics."

— A.O. Scott, NY Times

"Masterfully addressing the American racial divide, past and present... a galvanizing, ominous film, thrumming with a sense of history repeating itself."

— Joshua Rothkopf, Time Out NY

An Insignificant Man

Festivals: Toronto, London, Amsterdam Documentary 2016
In Hindi with English subtitles

The global backlash against neo-liberalism finds its Indian champion in this fascinating behind-the-scenes account of the rise of the former tax official turned anti-corruption activist Arvind Kejriwal and The Common Man's Party (AAP). Obviously partial to his cause but attentive to the complexities and contradictions of the man and an organisation still arguing its way into shape, the filmmakers make the most of two years' worth of exceptional access.

Going into the 2013 Delhi elections, the established parties realise that AAP is making inroads into their support, and the film assumes the urgency of a political thriller, delving deeper into media warfare and governmental machinations in the world's largest democracy.

The film has been effectively silenced in India by the Censor Board, who have demanded No Objection Certificates from the Prime Minister, the Chief Minister of Delhi and ex-Chief Minister of Delhi, before clearing the film for public viewing. "It's like asking Michael Moore to furnish a certificate from George W. Bush before clearing Fahrenheit 9/11," say filmmakers Khushboo Ranka and Vinay Shukla.

In Turkish with English subtitles

"It's hard to say whether Ceyda Torun's delightful and visually splendid Kedi is a documentary about Istanbul, with cats, or a documentary about cats that happens to be set in Istanbul..."

If Kedi is any sort of anthropological examination of the life of a city, it works because its vision is filtered through the lazy-looking but in fact hyper-aware eyes of our feline compatriots... The picture's pleasures are bountiful... There are cats sleeping obliviously on unnervingly high-up ledges; cats padding across corrugated rusty-red roofs; cats just hanging out in doorways, their ears barely twitching as nearby humans extol their virtues...

In all great cities, the magnificent intersects with the mundane – that's what makes them not only livable but vital. The cats of Kedi tell that story, in between naps. They know a good place when they've found it." — Stephanie Zacharek, Time

In English, Arabic and Spanish, with English subtitles

Julian Assange loathes Risk. Or he loathes, at least, what Risk has become. When it premiered at Cannes in 2016, Laura Poitras' film presented a mostly admiring portrait of the WikiLeaks founder. It has since been updated, and updated again. WikiLeaks' role in the US presidential election is part of that, but Poitras' revisions are more profoundly spurred by deepening suspicion about Assange's character, particularly his response to sexual assault allegations.

Seven years in the making, Risk is a thematic sibling to Citizenfour, the Edward Snowden feature that won Poitras the 2015 Best Documentary Oscar. The access is extraordinary. We see Assange marshalling his cohorts like an intelligence agency. Calling the State Department, demanding to speak to Hillary Clinton. Taking on an elaborate disguise for the dash to the Ecuadorian embassy.

Spellbinding and at times disquieting, Risk explores the moral and ethical debate sparked by WikiLeaks. But at its core it is a study of a man whose brilliance risks becoming subsumed by narcissism, with a startling attitude to those who challenge him – and a filmmaker unwilling to remain a bystander. — Toby Manhire

This revealing tribute to Native American musicians celebrates their little credited contributions to popular contemporary music from blues to jazz, from Hendrix to Metallica.

"A Native American singer of the Tuscarora tribe, Pura Fe Crescioni sits beside a turntable as it plays a 1929 recording of the bluesman Charley Patton. 'When I hear this, it's Indian music to me,' she says. 'That rhythm. Do you hear it?' After the field recordings of Mississippi Chocktaws performing their 'Drunk Dance' just moments earlier, I hear it.

Once this idea has been sown, it's hard not to hear Native American elements throughout the music profiled in this film, from the heavy metal thunder of drummer Randy Castillo to the glides and slides in the singing of early jazz queen Mildred Bailey.

In the end, though, the point is not to untie the tangled blood knot of American music so much as celebrate the greatest Native American music stars, many of whom kept their origins concealed. As Robbie Robertson of The Band was warned when he was young, 'Be proud you're an Indian, but be careful who you tell.'" — Nick Bollinger

If you come to NZIFF in search of real-life heroines, the 'Lethal Ladies' of Baltimore Leadership School for Young Women are here to steal your hearts – before they dazzle you in a blaze of step dance fury.

Opened in 2009 with a mandate to send every student to university, the school is well attuned to the poverty facing many of their brightest charges. The film trails three seniors as each is guided through the college application process. Where they find unity, relief and exhilaration is on the step dance team. Under the new step mistress, that's no walk in the park either: she's pushing them to kill at the state dance-off.

Director Amanda Lipitz gets close to her subjects and into their relationships with the women who champion and challenge them: their mothers, a heroically persistent college counsellor and the no-bullshit step coach. With so much effort concentrated on getting into college, the outcome of the step competition assumes a lesser significance than in the standard 'Best in Show' documentary, which only makes it more loaded when the big moment suddenly arrives.

A largely mysterious condition that reportedly afflicts as many as 17 million people worldwide, chronic fatigue syndrome or myalgic encephalomyelitis (ME) still perplexes most doctors and is often dismissed as a psychosomatic illness.

Director Jennifer Brea was a journalist and academic studying for a PhD at Harvard. Months before her wedding she became progressively ill, losing the ability even to sit in a wheelchair. When told by her doctor it was 'all in her head', her response was to start filming from her bed, gradually deploying crews globally to document the world inhabited by millions of patients whom medicine forgot.

Unrest tells the story of Jen and her husband, Omar, facing the unexpected, and four of the community of ME patients whom Jen brings together on the internet, in the United States, UK and Denmark. Together they explore how to make a meaningful life when everything changes. The film is a feat of disability filmmaking, made with an international team and using innovative technologies to allow the bedbound director to cover the world and film as if she's in the room.

Bringing colour to kiwi life since 1946

Resene's big screen story began back in 1946 when Ted Nightingale started making paint from his Wellington garage. Over 70 years later and the Resene name lives on as a truly homegrown success story, known for its quality paint, colour and innovation. Our paints are designed and made in New Zealand for our harsh weather conditions and our colours are inspired by everyday kiwi life. So you can be sure they will look great in your home, while also looking after it.

Proud supporters of the NZ films in the International Film Festival.
